Market Place of the Munnimakers

Don't Let Your Time Go to Waste. Sell It—All of It, or Part of It—But Don't Let Any of
It Be Lost When a Munnimaker Ad Will Find a Buyer
For It So Quickly and So Easily.

Keeping at It Is What Pays

BY MR. MUNNIMAKER

The Famous Profit-Wizard of the Standard Classified Advertising Columns.

"Now don't put in just one advertisement and expect to keep your store full for the rest of the year," said Mr. Munnimaker, yesterday, to a merchant who dropped into the Standard office. "A single advertisement often does work wonders. I'll admit. But after all it depends considerably on just how attractive an offer is stated in the advertisement."

"If you have only one article of its kind to sell, and you can sell to only one customer, then it is fair to try what a single advertisement will do. But sometimes it may take three or six advertisements before you find the particular customer to whom that one article is most valuable."

"But if you are advertising to get steady customers—if you are in a regular business—if you want to get orders from a number of customers for the same kind of goods or services, then let me tell you right now that you are making a mistake if you try to make one single advertisement do it all. For that kind of business-getting, the best way to use the Market Place of the Munnimakers is to just consider it a place in which you can give a daily greeting to everybody who are your customers or who ought to be your customers."

"In this way you can always reach with your message ten times as many people as would pass your store. When you come into the Market Place of the Munnimakers—the busy classified advertising columns of the Standard, just make up your mind that you are going to keep at it steadily until the results show. You want people to know that you are an established member of the business community. You want them to become familiar with your name, and your business, and the way you do business."

"You want them to know where you are, and how to get them. Now the only way to put those facts deep and firmly into people's minds, is to keep at it steadily—keep your advertisement before them day after day, make your ads interesting, so inter-
